

You're invited to

RECENT CHANGES CAMP

March 11, 12, 13 - Wentworth Institute of Technology - Boston, MA

Recent Changes Camp was born from the intersection of wiki and Open Space. Since 2006, participants from all over North America and the globe have gathered together for a common purpose: discussing the past, present, and future of the technology and collaborative method that is wiki. RCC is a chance for everyone in the wiki community to meet and have a fun, productive conversation about our passion for wikis of all stripes.

Going far beyond technology, we're interested in wiki culture and other networks/groups/etc. that share many of the values implicit in it — from cultural creatives, to public participation and free culture advocates. Unlike a conventional conference, where everything's pre-planned and structured, we decide for ourselves what we're going to get out of it by offering sessions each morning on whatever we want (and of course ad hoc sessions can form at any time). There's no agenda until we make it up! Now, that might sound a bit chaotic if you're never been to this type of gathering, but be prepared to be surprised at how much people can learn and create when they collaborate spontaneously.

At Recent Changes Camp, everybody is welcomed. You don't need to be an expert on anything, and you certainly don't need to consider yourself a geek. Collaboration thrives on diversity!

- We generally get together in the morning, around 9 or 10 am, and finish sessions around 5pm, on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday.
- The event will be held in Watson Auditorium in Wentworth Hall: 550 Huntington Avenue Boston, MA 02115
- Get more details and keep up with event updates at 2011.recentchangescamp.org and facebook.com/recentchangescamp